WHARF AND WAVE.

The American whaling steamer Navarch, Capt. Wm. B. Ellis, arrived Sunday from New Bedford Mass. She is docked near the P. M. S. S. Co.'s wharf, and will commence landing her oil, of which she has 450 barrels, this morning The Navarch is a trim-looking vessel. This is her first voyage. Last Patagonia, whales were seen seventeen times, but owing to heavy southwest gales had been able to lower boats but four times. Eight whales were taken, yielding 350 barrels of sperm oil, 100 barrels of whale oil and 800 pounds of bone. Several engineers, beat steerers, etc., arrived here on the Monowai to sail in her.

Capt. J. Whitesides, who arrived here on the Monowai last week, will take command of the New Bedford steam whaler Navarch this season.

The S. S. Monowai arrived at Honolulu, March 10, 1893, at 5 A. M. Sailed from San Francisco on the 3d inst. at 5 P. M. and had a fine weather run with fresh easterly winds the last two days. The Monowai slowed down on Thursday evening so as to make land at daylight, otherwise her run if she had come right on would have been made in 6 days, 7 hours, a very remarkable performance.

On Wednesday the 8th at 6 P. M. a steerage passenger, James White, died from general exhaustion caused by intemperance. He was on his way to join the steam whaler Navarch, as sailmaker, at Honolulu, and was a man of about fifty years, supposed to be an Englishman. No papers to establish his identity were found upon him and his effects have been handed over to the British Consul. He was buried next day at 6 A. M.

NEWCASTLE, N. S. W .- Feb. 24th, sailed the British ship Greta for Honolulu.

BREMEN-Arrived Mar. 1st, Ger. bark J. C. Pfluger, from Honolulu

via San Francisco Oct. 13th. Mahukona, Hawaii, with a thrilling report of an encounter with last weeks' northwester. Capt. Carlson says it was blowing fully eighty dependence." miles an hour on the 24th ultimo, when the North was in latitude 36.27 N., longitude 132 W., and that the seas which broke on deck were the worst he ever experienced. All the sail set was blown away, and the weight of water was such that fifty-five barrels of a deck-load of molasses were stove and lost, together with all the water-casks. Nearly all the provisions were spoiled, and the cabin and forecastle were so full of water that dry clothes were unknown for the rest of the voyage. The mate had his shoulder dislocated in the storm. -S. F. Examiner, March 1.

LONDON, Feb. 24.-A sensation has been caused in naval circles by the non-concurrence of the Lords of the Admiralty in the acquittal of Vice-Admiral Fairfax, of the British Mediterranean Squadron, and of Commander David P. Dickson and Captain A. P. Hastings, of the entrance of Ferror Harbor, Spain. The Lords attribute the disaster, which proved so costly to the British treasury, to unskillful commerce, but a perpetual peril to our management on the part of the trio. Their decision is thought a specially severe rebuke for Fairfax, who stands high in the Navy.

The United States Consul at Bristol, England, has cabled to the Secretary of State that the American schooner Emma Louise of Calais, Me., was abandoned 34 north and 71 west January 27. The crew was rescued by the Norwegian bark Sophie, Donvig master, and landed at Bristol. They are all in good health and will be sent home at friends abroad.

OF BIG VALUE.

Commercial and Military Importance of Hawaii.

When the reciprocity treaty with Hawali was under discussion in 1876 January, while off the coast of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce recorded an opinion in its favor in the following words:

> "Opposite the very portals of this commerce, and in its track, lie these islands, keeping, as it were, watch and ward over this entire coast. Plant an active enemy upon them, and even if he were the most insignificant of the maritime powers, he would probably annihilate this commerce. A power with a fleet consisting only of the Florida and Alabama would, intrenched in these marine fortresses, harass all profit out of it. In the hands of England or France the effect would be to enable either of these powers to shut us out of the great highway of the Pacific and lock us up, so far as commerce is concerned, within our own mountain ranges."

> MILITARY VALUE OF THE ISLANDS, That was in 1876. Since then it is admitted that both the commercial and strategic importance of Hawaii bave steadily increased. The growth of its military value with the extension of railroads across the continent and the beginning of the isthmus canal has been especially great.

Admiral Porter once said that "with these islands our Pacific coast is impregnable, without them it is defense-less." And the London Times long ago declared that "the maritime power that holds Pearl river harbor and moors her fleet there holds the key of the North Pacific." The government of the United States has a naval and coaling station at Pago Pago, in the island of Tutuila, but according to the New York Sun that concerns mainly our interests in Central Polynesia and the trade from San Francisco or the Isthmus to Sydney and Auckland. The commercial route between Australia and Vancouver will long be in great part for British ships. Hawaii lies in the direct path between San Francisco and Hong Kong, and is the natural midstation for Pacific commerce north of the equator. Our Samoan harbor has its uses for trade in and through the South seas, but Hawaii is not only the mercantile but the strategic center of the North Pacific. It is in the straight route from Nicaragua canal

SECRETARY FISH'S DECLARATION. Under Gen. Grant's administration Secretary Fish declared that "the position of the Sandwich Islands as an outpost fronting and commanding the whole of our possessions on the Pacific ocean gives to the future of those islands a peculiar interest to the govern-ment and people of the United States. Their transfer to any other maritime power," he said, "would threaten a military surveillance in the Pacific similar to that which Bermuda has afforded in the Atlantic. The latter has been submitted to from necessity, inasmuch as it was congenital with our government, but we desire no ad-ditional similar outposts in the hands of those who may at any future time use them to our disadvantage."

Thirty years earlier than this Daniel Webster asserted that the United schooner John G. North ar- States would "never consent to see rived this evening, 21 days from these islands taken possession of by either of the great commercial powers of Europe," nor have enforced against them "demands manifestly unjust and inconsistent with a bona fide in-

MR, MARCY ON RECORD.

Mr. Marcy is also on record with the announcement that "we are resolved that no other power or state shall establish any protectorate over them." Several years later Mr. Blaine showed how the progress of events had still further developed American policy and responsibility in declaring that the United States government had already acquired "a legitimately do-minant influence in the North Pacific, which it can never consent to see decreased," inasmuch as "the situation of the Hawaiian Islands, giving them the strategic control of the North Pacific, brings their possession within the range of questions of pure-ly American policy."

ANOTHER GIBRALTAR. . A well informed gentleman, commenting on the situation, said:
"If so important to the United States, it can be understood what a menace to America Hawaii might become should it ever fall into the hands of England. Realizing its importance as a station not only between her Australian and her Canadian possessions, but between Panama and the ironclad battle-ship Howe, Japan, she would make Honolulu anwhich stranded on November 2, at other Gibraltar. Forts, dock yards and repair shops would spring up and the island of Oahu would be not only the refuge of her fleets and her Pacific
